CLEVER ECONOMY.

A Woman Who Has an Idea and Patience Is Not Downed by Poverty.

There are some natures to whom the idea of economy of any kind is abhorrent, or, at least, repellant, but happily they are not many women natures of this sort, says the Philadels phia Press.

There are few women but who, from necessity, or, perhaps, choice, practice little savings and economies, him. and are pleased with any practical or pretty idea to this end.

As an an illustration of this I saw yesterday a very handsome and dainty petticoat which was the outcome of a thrifty idea of a saving woman. Two diess skirts that had passed their day of usefulness, but which were of fine, soft wool goods, were utilized: All linings were taken out and the skirts were ripped apart, washed and dyed a pretty shade of dard blue. Then the skirt was cut over the proper width and length. A close-fitting yoke fitted snugly about the waist, and the seams were bound with narrow taffeta ribbons. A durable silk waist that has seen long service took its share of the ripping and washing and pressing. The best part of the full body and duge sleeves were cut into narrow bias bands, which were hemmed and put on the skirt in two small, full ruffles. The yoke of the skirt was drawn in to fit by narrow taffeta ribbon run into the back of the yoke. The sateen for the yoke, the ribbon for the binding and the strings were the only materials purchased for ingly stylish garment. Yoke, frills, binding and ribbon garnet, and the body of the skirts vas a good shade of blue.

When skirts are utilized it is best to make them double or line them, sewing together firmly in the seams. When there is no article of silk to purchase, a pretty finish can be made from wool. Crochet in a close pattern, sufficient lace from the wool to finish the bottom of the skirt, and put on with ribbon gathered into fancy shells or puffs.

LAST GAME.

Why he Refused to Accept a Winning and Decided to Play No More.

A party of fi ve gentlemen had been in the habit of meeting once a week or two tires. For sale by Bicycle profession, and were respected in their business and personal relations. The incident given below, that took pace at their last meeting for the pur- it." pose of an evenings's enjoyment of their tavorite game, dramatic as it may seem, is strictly true, says a New York paper.

It is not easy to give the reason for the fascinations or the excitements of on the night we speak of, overwrought by stimulating circumstances, each of the players, because of what seem. ed to be the strength of his own hand, increased the amount of his bet over that which had been made.

One of the five was a lawyer, who had many important clients depending upon him He was the most imperturbable of the players, greatly addicted to the game and as it hap pened in this instance held the highest cards in his hands. He knew that he was a sure winner, for no other combination could possibly beat

The excitement became intense and the betting had risen from hundeds gize. ot dollars to $1.000. The lawyer for a moment changed color, then put thousand dollars, laid them on the middle of the table, thus covering the last bet. He then said: "I call you," which is the technical way of bringing the betting to an and his hand shook as he showed his winning cards. The doctor of such an unusual amount, and sprang to assist him, but the lawyer waved him back and bent his head trying to control himself. His friends felt a jeweler." that his emotion was due to some unusual cause. In silence they looked on while he did a strange thing,

First he took ten one-hundred dollar bills from the heap of money that he had won and then folding them together he put them with the roll he had taken from his pocket.

When this was done he drew a long breath-almost a gasp of relief. Then what was a serviceable and exceed- he carefully separated his own original money from the remainder and pushed the rest away, looking at it was a pretty, changeable gold and steadily for a second or two without speaking. At length he said, raising his hand and registering a solemn oath-we quote his exact language.

"I am done with poker. Loving the game as much as I do, I give it up from this moment forever. fascination that would make me do a thing like that is one that I dare not risk again. I cannot touch the money that I won with it, for it is not my own.

His friends took up the money and bowed in silence Their astonishment and respect were too great for words. The lawyer soon rose and left the room, never to return.

He had unconsciously given a striking illustration of the fact that the essence of character which we call soul may be lost or saved at the moment when one comes to the border line between an honest and a dishonest act.

NOT CAUSED BY AN OPAL.

A Story of Bad Luck, the Cause of Which Is Still a Matter Of Doubt.

Here is a story showing how to ac count for bad luck.

A man was shaking dice in a store He lost. "No wonder," said a bystander,

'You're wearing and opal. You neve will have luck." This set the man to thinking. Four days later he slipped in getting off a street car and sprained his ankle. This decided him. He gave the pin to a friend who was on the Board of Trade, and who was too hard-headed to entertain any fool notions about the number 13 or black cats, or crosseyed girls with red hair.

Nevertheless, when this Board of Trade man lost over $10,000 on wheat to play poker. They were each of he began to worry. He didn't care might of won by going before the Can containg enough puncturoid them ordinarily successful in his much for the pin any way, and so one day when a young man in his of fice admired the "fire" in the stone he said: "Take it along, if you like

The young man overwhelmed him with thanks. Then he waited with guilty knowledge, to see what would happen to the young man. He did not have to wait long. The very next week the employe was taken ill, poker playing. Suffice it to say that and he missed four days at the office.

The Board of Trade man was troubed in conscience, so he told his young friend about the opal pin an ' the snperstition attaching to it, and the em ploye after deliberation, decided that he would give the pin to his girl.

The opal did very rapid and effect ive work after it became the property of the young woman. On the second day after she began to wear it, she ignited a curtain in attempting to light the gas. The curtain was destroyed and the young woman had both of her hands burned in attempting to extinguish the blaze.

The young man who had given the stone to her felt called upon to apolo-"I'll not wear the dreadful thing a day longer," she said.

So she didn't. She gave it to her brother, who scoffed at the suggestion end. As he did so he turned pale that a little stone could wield any influence, good or bad. Nevertheless when he started for Cincinnatti and the party thought he was going to the train ran off the track and he was faint from the excitement of winning tossed half the length of the car he became converted.

"I'll not give it to anybody else to be a Jonah," said he. "I'll sell it to

Highest of all in Leavening Power .-- Latest U.S. Gov't Report

GOV. BRADLEY. A High Tribute to Kentucky's

Executive. Scarcely a greater compliment has peen paid during the campaign than that to Kentucky by ex-President Harrison, through a Courier-Journal reporter: "I am proud of Kentucky; proud was there that the present fight for honest money began." And then laughingly he continued, "they of the East are won't to refer to us of the West as a lot of the rattle brains, among whom the tree silver heresy abled him to go to work a perfectly finds its home. I am glad we can point them to Kentucky as the original starting point of the fight now on. I am greatly gratified at the stand taken by the liberal and patriotic sound money Democrats of the South."

In a great fight upon a plane higher than party and party platforms where all have laid their tributes, both Republicans and sound money Democrats, upon the alter of their common country, it may appear invidious to single out any leader-where all have done so nobly-yet the truth of history and the demands of simple justice, alike, require recognition of the fact that to William O. Bradley, more than to any one man North or south, is due the honor of calling this threatening movement to a halt, by hitting it a body blow from which it has never recovered.

Last year he ploughed the soil, and pioughed deeply, and Kentucky this year naturally had the post of honor as the leader of the column.

Ordinary politics demanded nothng of this kind at the hands of Mr. Bradley last year. He might have made his canvass and won on long continued Democratic mismanagenear doing eight years before. He people as a prophet whose prophicies ad beed fulfilled.

He noticed the funnel-shaped cloud contending this free silver cyclone, and casting aside all ideas of policy, on expediency, on diplomacy, he prepared for the coming storm. Forewarmed is forearmed. He pressed the sound money issue to the front and staked his political success or failure on the result.

The consequence was a disaster to free coinage from which it has never recovered.

It was the taking of the heights of Quartre-Bras, in 1895, which commands the fields of Waterloo in 1896. The people of Kentucky are better ducated, better informed than the people of any other state. The ground was well ploughed last year and an abundant harvest this year follows. He entered the canvass with the ardor and energy of youth. Afflicted with a throat trouble, which would have deterred others, he laid aside comfort and ease, and disregarding his own health, he entered the work in Illinois, Ohio, and West Virginia. In Kentucky his voice has been heard in speeches that will never be forgotton. Indeed the great drama would have been marred without him. "It would have been like playing Hamlet with the part of the Prince

It is no wonder that men like Expresident Harrison should compliment Kentucky for her great work, and the noble stand she early took, and for this the State and Nation owe more to W. O. Bradley than any one else, great as is the need of praise due many of her sons. Not since Henry A. Wise gave to Knownothingism its death blow in Virginia has there been a more brilliant campaign than in Kentucky in 1895, preparatory to the great and decisive battle in 1896. While the Governor has not made so many speeches this year as last, they have been the greatest efforts of his life.

In Owensboro, Louisville and at other places where the greatest orators have spoken, it is conceded that Bradley's speeches outranked them all. He has gone wherever called; it mattered not that in two instances, at least, he was asked to go out into districts where his personal enemies were candidates. He buried every animosity and in the turtherance of he did not hesitate, but earnestly labored for all alike .- [Leader.

The good and loyal Republicans of Ohio county deserve much praise for their magnificent work in the campaign just ended. The Republican plurality has been increased from 300 to over 500, and the party has been strengthened. It has never been the policy of the Republican party to abuse an opposite party and then for the sake of an office p with that party and then violate all the pledges that were made in the agreement. Such were the tactics of the Democratic party in the late campaigh. They succeeded in getting the Populist Electors withdrawn and compelling the Populists to vote under the rooster, but when it came to getting Judge Durham to withdraw in the interest of Dave Smith and sacrifice his principles on the Democratic altar he said "no." The Democratic party has always abused the Populists on every oc casion that presented itself. Last spring in the special election had the Democrats stood up to their promise Esq. Render would have defeated Dr. James for the Senate, but they proved talse, and had they voted for Durham, which they ought to have done, he would have defeated Dave Smith in this county. We mention these facts in order to throw some light on the inside workings of the Democrat-

A FEW figures on the election in Ohio county might be very interest. ing and will show the strength of each party. In 1896 Bradley received 2154; Hardin 1870; Petitt 626; Demaree 72. In the election last week John W. Lewis received 2637; making a Republican gain of 483; D. H. Smith received 2092; making a Democratic gain 222; Durham received 646, a net gain of 20; Likens received 61, making a loss of 11 votes. We see from these figures that the Democrats did not support Durham, but made talse promises to the Populists in order to get their votes for Bryan. It the Democrats had stood up to their agreement with the Populists Durham would have beaten Smith in this county about the same that Smith beat Durham. The Republicans went straight along and voted for Lewis and made an increase of 483. He only ran a little ahead of McKinley in the county and the fig. ures show that he never received any Democratic votes. The figures also show that Durham never received any Democratic votes to amount to any thing or else he would have gotton more votes, which he deserved by the fusion agreement. The Democrats only made tools out of the Populists to get their votes and treated them like mere slaves in their greed for supremacyin the county. Now that they have gotton their votes for Bryan they don't give the Populists any credit for what they did in the matter, but attribute it all to the Democrats.

PISO'S CURE FOR N

Coming down to facts and figures to was simply the patriotism of sound money Democrats that placed Kentucky inthe Republican column. That they may remain patriots is our most earnest desire.

THE magnificent campaign of 1895 made by Governor W. O. Bradley en an unquestionable sound money platform was what made it possible and paved the way to Republican success this year in Kentucky.

AND the Hartford Herald says 'Ohio county is redeemed.'' In a straight race between the Republicans, Democrats and Populists, John W. Lewis, the Republican candidate for Congress, received a majority of 526. That doggoned Herald won't tell the truth. It will tell a lie when the truth would sound better.

It was decidedly the biggest day ever had in Fordsville.

Bryan's trail through the country in his stumping tours can be traced by the immense Republican majorities which the election revealed. It was just after the "ovations" which he received in Massachusetts that he announced his belief that he would "carry every State in the union." As a response to that prediction Massachusetts rolled up a plurality of about 170,000 against him. He made many eloquent speeches in Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana, and these States answered him by getting into the Republican column. That great speech in Madison Square Garden, when he first invaded the enemy's country, is probably responsible for many of the votes represented by New York's 270,000 plurality against him. It was in Illinois, though, that he made the effort of his life, and Illinois retaliated by burying him under three times as large as it ever cast against any other presidential condidate.

THE electioneering tour of candidate Bryan was one of the most remarkable features of the recent campaign. He traveled nearly 19. 000 miles, and made 600 speeches, containing 375,000 words in 447 towns and cities in 27 different states, to audiences aggregating over 2,000, 000 persons. Nothing equal to this in the way of personal effort was ever before known in our politics or in the politics of any other country. And what was its general effect upon his fortunes? HARDINSBUKG.

A Summary of The Election And Some General News.

The election is over, that is the presidential election is over. Unfortunately we have an election every year. Next year the counties of this state elect their county officers. Primaries to nominate candidates will be held as early as December. In this county we not only have our county election and primary for next year, but we also have a local option contest in the Hardinsburg Magisterial District in December. Thus it is the American people have no rest from politics.

In looking over the vote in our neighboring counties, in the election just past, we find that Breckenridge county is the only county that has kept aloft the banner of Republicanism. Ohio county went for Bryan, albeit she gave the Hon John W. Lewis a magnificent majority. Hancock county went for the "Boy Orator of the Platte." Grayson county gave Bryan a majority of 109. Mckinley and the Hon. D. H. Smith ran just 300 votes behind Mr. Lewis.

When we turn to the eastern end of the Fourth Congressional District a sad scene presents itself overwhelming majorities for Bryan to the number of votes received, by Mr. "C J.," of Lebanon, who erstwhile was giving out bugle calls for Now that McKinley is elected and "ditto" marks under same and oppo- the western end of the District to stand by John W. We advised "C.J." at the time that he had better attend more especially to Marion county and events show that our advice was good and wholesome. We do not wish to be understood as finding fault with the Republicans in any portion of the District, for they are all earnest and loyal party men. But it is well enough for honor to be given where honor is due, and for the people to know whats what.

The success of the Republicans scramble for the offices to be distributed. Breckinridge county will furnish her share. We understand that several of our citizens have revenue appointments in view, while the old Breckinridge during the next Business Will Improve. The battle has been fought, and the victory won. Wm. McKinley is the President elect of the United States; also, there is no doubt that Sarsaparilla as effectually as the old Congress, both houses and Senate, postmasters are displaced by a new will be Republican. It has been a great victory. Now let the country rejoice that a great calamity has been averted, and that the country will resume its march of progress and prosperity. Now capital will begin to move, labor will find employment, the hum of industry will begin. We do not expect everything to come at once but the beginning of a business revival will take place at once; already it has commenced. Money will get easier, mills and factories which have been idle for many months will resume operation, and will call back their long idle hands; money will gradually begin to flow out into the interior of the country, and the farmer will soon begin to realize some benfit! but we must not expect too much all at once; it will require many months to get started up, and to real turn to our old time business methods and we must not expect, like some of our free silver triends, that we will find a dollar lying under our plates every morning for breakfast. No man can expect under tree silver or under a gold standard, that he can graph. get money without working for it. The election of William McKinley means that the millions of idle workingmen will soon be able to find employment at remunerative wages. How different it would have been if Bryan had been elected. Gloom, anxiety, distress and fluencial anars chy, would have prevailed to day, in all the business centers of the country. Money, instead of flowing out into the channels of trade, would have been, and continued to be idle. But the country is saved, and now let ev-the district except 2.500 sound-money Democrats and every Populist.

"Now what do we find? We find that instead of receiving 15,415 votes or a reasonable increase over that number growing out of the increased interest in the election among voters, that Mr. Bryan has received 25,920 votes-nearly double the amount to which he was entitled. To show that this remarkable increase could not have come from Republican ranks, we increased our vote from 11,658, about what we thought we would get on the basis of the Bradley vote, to 13.352, an increase of 2,694 votes. This is of course, accounted for by the getting out of more than the ordinary Republican vote. But how, with all the disaffection existing, is the Democratic increase of 10,505 accounted for? That is what we propose to find out. I repeat that it is curious, to say the least."

McKinley Carries Kentucky by a Safe Pluradity.

It seems certain that Kentucky has been caaried by the McKinley electors and the old commonwealth will cast its first electoral vote for Republican nominees. Chairman Sam J. Roberts, who has been figuring on the vote for almost a week, has issued his last report which is as follows.

"Practially complete official returns give McKinley 444 plurality in Kentucky unofficial advices indicating that the four missing counties will increase rather than decrease these figures. The Republicans elect four members of congress and a judge of the highest court of the state for an eight year term, and by the filling of vacancies have secured a majority of will, to be sure, create somewhat of a two in the seneral assembly on joint ballot, which insures a Republican successor to Senator Blackburn.

"The total vote in the state will approximate 425,000, an increrse of 70.the election. The Republican vote

To Sam J. Roberts. To Mr. Sam J. Roberts, of the Lexngton Leader, all Republicans doff their hats. As Chairman of the campaign committee, he has covered every point. With unsurpassed watchfulness he guided an army whose trumph was received with joy in all sections of this country. Mr. Roberts has shown himself to be a magnificent general and his great executive ability is now something of national note No one in this state did more for Major McKinley than his former neighbor and tellow townsman, Mr. Roberts. Four years ago the Lexington journalist predicted the nomination of McKinley as well as his election and not since that time has he faltered in his fight for the great protectionist. That Mr. Roberts will occupy a high seat in the councils of the state during the next administration, all know in advance. He is deserving of the best that comes to Kentucky. -[Panta-

AN ORPHANED FAWN. The Strange Pet of a Portland (Ore.) Lad.

A young boy with a pet fawn trotting behind him attracted attention on a recent afternoon on the White the approach of a team would timidknown insurance man, who was on the road driving with his wife, the lad told the story of his acquisition ing on the Tualatin river. Fish were plentiful, and, engrossed in the sport, the lad kept his eyes on the ripple, taking no cognizance of what as going on behind him. A bleating sound from the bank above him he paid no attention to, thinking it was some stray lamb. The bleating was repeated a number of times, but the boy was fishing and the trout were rising freely. Then came a patter of tiny hoofs down the river bank, and a little cold nose was pushed in his hand. Looking down, the boy found the fawn standing beside him, apparently without fear, the pleading look in its big brown eyes asking help. Its neck and one side of the head was covered with blood, still wet, its limbs barely supporting the frail body.

The boy's first thought was that the waif had been wounded, and in attempting to reach water had come out on the river bank at the point where he was fishing, and through sheer weakness being unable to go further, had tumbled down to the stream, landing by his side. Picking the little thing up in his arms, the lad waded out on the ripple, and, washing the blood from the fawn's neck, found it uninjured.

Some pot hunter had shot the mother doe, and with her dying strength she had plunged back through the timber to reach the baby deer, born but a few days before. The fawn had evidently become alarmed and started to find the buck, its one point of location being the runway at the river, where, during its few days of life, the two had nightly come to drink.

The boy, who gave his name as Frank Harrison, took the fawn to his home, where there was a baby brother and a nursing bottle, and together Mrs. Harrison is bringing up her own baby and the orphaned deer. It was less than an hour be fore the fawn had accustomed itself to the new surroundings and was perfectly at home. It at once attached itself to the boy, Frank, seeming to look on the lad as its natural protector, and now wherever the lad goes the fawn follows. -- Portland Telegram.

A Russian Baby.

A traveler from Russia says that Russian babies in Siberia are not very attractive. He says that one day he noticed in one of the houses a curious bundle on a shelf; another hung from a peg in the wall, and a third hung by a rope from the rafters-this one the mother was swinging. The traveler discovered that each curious bundle was a child; the one in the swinging bundle was the youngest. The traveler looked at the little baby, and found it so dirty that he exclaimed in disgust: "Why do you not wash it?" The mother looked horror-stricken, and ejaculated: "Wash it! Wash the baby! Why, it would kill it!" What happy country Russia would be for some boys! Never to hear "Wash your face and hands," nor "Have you brushed your hair?" -N. Y. Outlook.

RUN DY THE GOVERNMENT.

The Russian Dispensary System for Sale of Spirits.

The extension of the system of monopoly of the sale of spirits by the crown in Russia is described by our consul general at St. Petersburg in his last report, says the London Times. The system was first introduced in 1893 in the provinces of Perm, Ufa, Orenburg and Samara, and was extended from July 1, 1896, to Besarabia, Volhynia, Ekaterinoslav, Kieff, Podolia, Poltava, the Taurida, Kherson and Tchernigov. To these provinces the system has been applied, with some modifications, which local peculiarities and conditions have necessitated. The modifications consist principally in the acquisition by the government of corn brandy from small brandy distilleries, whereas in the four easttilled from which has a peculiar ern provinces such purchases were confined to large distilleries. Moreover, brandy distilled from grain and potatoes will be acquired by the government in preference to that obtained from the residue of sugar made of beetroot, the brandy distaste, which renders it rather unpalatable. It would appear that the sale of Scotch and Irish whisky, gin, rum, liqueurs and other spirituous drinks, excepting wine, beer, porter and mead, comes under the operation of the new liquor sale monopoly law, and that it will rest with the ministers of finance and the interior to issue or withhold licenses for the sale of these to private individuals. The ordinary corn brandy, or vodka, of the country in its various forms is, under the new regulations, sold from shops and depots maintained by the government, which, however, as in the case of spirituous drinks of foreign origin, reserves to itself the right of allowing private dealers, such as grocers, etc., to sell vodka, and the right of doing so will be granted only to persons who may be considered thoroughly trustworthy. From July , 1897, the monopoly will be extended to the provinces of Wilna, Vitebsk, Kovno, Minsk, Moghileff and Smolensk, and from January 1, 1898, a further extension of the system will embrace the provinces of St. Petersburg, Novgorod, Pskov, Olonetsk and Kharkoff. "It is too early yet to form a positive judg-ment whether the monopoly of the sale of spirituous beverages by the government has answered financialall expectations. But the first essay in its application to four of the eastern provinces of the empire has proved so satisfactory in general ef-

The little nized form of security, and, although creature was perfectly tame, and on they may bear no interest for the time being, they sometimes prove in ly run to the boy's side as though the long run a very profitable inseeking protection. To a well- vestment, The honor of first applying this form of speculation to breach of promise of marriage undoubtedly belongs to Mrs. Mary Rosenberg, fur machinist, also a prepossessing widow of 28, whose implicit reliance on the honesty of Mr. Israel Katze ended in chagrin and disappointment. The parties resided in Aldgate. A casual meeting ripened into friendship, and friendship blossomed into a promise of marriage, under the rosy hato of which Katze borrowed ten pounds from his too confiding sweetheart. Then his ardor cooled. Finally is froze altogether, and, after faithlessly plighting his troth to another, he went to South Africa. Mrs. Rosenberg brought an action for breach of promise of marriage against him in the high court, which, being undefended, was remitted to the sheriff of Middlosex to assess the damages. Mr. Bertram Jacobs, the solicitor who appeared for the lady. explained that there was no present expectation of obtaining whatever damages the jury might give, but, as gentlemen who went to Africa often made fortunes and longed to return to England to prove the fact to the public, the verdict might ultimately become of value to her. In other words, it would form a deferrel security. The jury awarded her £150 damages. Mr. Katze now knows what he has to meet, and the sooner he comes back the less interest will be have to pay. - London Telegraph.

Prof. Fisk, official physician at Yale, gives as a page from his experience that of a class of 147 students the 77 who did not use to bacco surpassed the 70 who did by 10 per cent. increase in weight, 24 per cent. increase in height, 26 per cent. increase in chest and 77 per cent. in lung capacity. The highest fourth of the class in scholarship were almost all non-smokers, and the lowest fourth almost all smokers.

Why She Fainted. A lady leading a skye terrier by a chain entered the ladies' cabin of a Gloucester ferryboat the other day. The dog crawled under the seat and went to sleep. Presently a stout man, carrying a market basket, took the vacant place beside her and stowed his basket under the seat. Soon after the boat started the woman began to wriggle. She shook out her skirts, and in an audible whisper said: "Don't berude, Fido." Presently she turned pale, and, jerking the chain, cried: "Lie down, Fido. Behave yourself, sir." A moment later she jumped up with a shrick and began to execute a war dance, striking at her skirts the while. The stout citizen stared at her in amazement, and then an idea struck him. Reaching under the seat for his basket he looked inside it, and then a great light of inteligence came over him. "Madam," said he, without moving an eyelash. when you are through with my lobster, will you kindly return it to me?" The jaws of the lobster were wrenched apart before the lady had recovered from her faint. -1

When Captain Noah built the ark as a high water packet in the Araret trade and he went into the menagerie business, he found thatthere was a 'mule out' just as he got ready to leave on his maiden trip. He went ashore, and after looking around found a mule and would have made his animal show fect as to justify the gradual extension of the system to other parts of complete if he had been able to get the empire. The County Election. redeemed" but it fails to tell how. ty was represented on the ticket and gress, because the People's party had Lewis Republican, 2637; David H. Smith, Silver Democrat, 2092; Jas. E. Durham, People's party, 636; W. M. Likens, Prohibitionist, 82. This gives Mr. Lewis' majority of 545 over Silver Democrat, Smith, and a Republican gain of 483 over the vote for Bradley in 1895. It also shows a Silver Democratic gain of 222 over the vote for Hardin in 1895 and a clear Republican gain of 261. If Silver Democrats can get any consolation out of this they are welcome to it and if this is what they call "redeemed" the Republicans say give us some more "redemption."

It is also true that the fusion electoral ticket about tied in this county, but when the campaign opened the vote of 1895 showed that the combined vote of Silver Democrats of 1870 or Hardin and 626 for Petit over Bradley's vote of 2154 showed that the Silverite fusionists had in Ohio ounty a clear majority of 342. This majority has entirely disppeared and if this is what the Herald calls "redeemed" we again repeat give us some more "redemption." For the benefit of the public we will add that the Republican vote for our first elector, Sam Kash, was 2653, which is more votes than any other Repubican nominee ever received in Ohio county. This we suppose is some

Condition of Crops and Live Stock November 1, 1896.

Report on condition of crops and stock on November 1st is taken from replies from 151 correspondents, representing 101 counties.

Early in the season the tendency was towards a decreased acreage of wheat. This was materially checked both by favorable seeding conditions existing late in the season, and by The Herald says Ohio county is the rapid rise in the price of this cereal. The scarcity of good seed wheat For the benefit of voters we give the has, to some extent, favored a devote of Ohio county where each par- creased acreage. The vote was centage of the crop plowed up last as follows for Congressman: John W. spring on account of winter-killing, gives the total of acreage seeded this year 948,024 acres. The condition of the growing plant, especially the early sown, is excellent. The growing weather during October resulted in perfect germination, and the stand is almost pefect, the only exception being where inferior seed was sown, Some cases of this kind are reported where resowing was necessary. Another favorable feature is the thorough preparation of the soil for the crop. Weather conditions favored this to a remarkable degree, and, combined with the stimulation of advancing prices, the result is the best cultivat-

The condition of feeding hogs averages 84, which is a falling off from last month. The decrease is due to the increased prevalence of cholera. The fear of this disease has caused many farmers to rush hogs on the market before they were matured. Many correspondents express a belief that this will have a decided effect on the number of hogs to be marketed during the packing season. The number of hogs, other than those being fattened, as compared with 1895, is 89 per cent.

SHEEP. All reports point to a decrease in the number of breeding ewes in the hands of farmers. The low price of ambs for a series of years, coupled with the extreme low price of wool, has caused a gradual curtailment of flocks. The number of sheep of all kinds September 15, 1896, as shown by reports of county assessors, is 813,629, as against 903,615 for same date of 1895.

NEW STEERABLE BALLOON. Can Be Propelled Against Even

Strong Head Wind. At the Berlin industrial exhibition there is to be seen a wonderful balloon, which is reported to be steertremendous bag rose to the height of about 65 feet and was propelled in all directions, even against the wind. The public was allowed to give the directions, so that there should be no doubt as to the 'genuine powers of the new aerial vessel. Dr. Wolfert, the designer of the balloon, claims that it can be steered against any wind at any altitude, but this has not vet been tested.

The motive power of this ellipticaly built balloon is a kind of doublebladed ship's propeller, having a diameter of about three yards. It is placed in front of the basket, while right below the car is another propeller of the same dimensions, for apward and downward movement. These propellers make 500 revolutions per minute. The engine is of eight-horse power. The monster balloon is over 30 yards long, and in the center the diameter is about yards. The basket from shape is called a gallerie, and is five yards long. It is constructed of bamboo and is fastened to the balloon in such a way as to form an integral part of its bulky sustainer. Neither part can have separate movement. The method of fastening the two is the secret of the inventor, Dr. Wolfert, who will not say anything about it. He has made 53 ascents with other smaller balloons of this construction, the last time on May 20 from the royal department of military aeronauts' drill ground. This latest and largest of his progeny he has christened Deutschland, and it is hinted that the form of the balloon is not dissimilar from that ordered by the Spanish government for use gainst the Cuban revolutionaries. -N. Ex-Footman Tells of His Giddy Rise and the Fall That Followed

The London Telegraph has been publishing lately a lot of letters from people out of work, and for one reason or another unable to get it. Here is one of them. It discloses a varied and decidedly interesting

"Sir: I began life on my own account as a page boy, and, being tall and of tolerably good appearance, I was not long in blooming into a footman and what is termed a thorough indoor servant. Afterwards, I was fortunate enough to get the position as valet to one of the first noblemen in the land, and as such traveled with my master all over the world and into the palaces of nearly every crowned head of Europe and the white house at Washington, seeing life and the world as only such can see it and enjoy it. But, alas! I, too, fell into disgrace, though not through dishonesty, and had to leave my situation without a character.

"I betook myself and family away from my associates of the past to a western rural district, where some navvy work was going on for the Great Western railway. I asked for employment, and was set to work at 3s. 6d. per day unloading trucks of ballast. Handling a shovel in front of five tons of gravel, I found by the blisters it brought on my hands, was altogether a different sort of a pair of buckskin breeches; but I brought my trouble on myself, and was determined I would not sink and my family suffer through it more than I could possibly help.

"I worked as long as the job lasted, and then served as a farm and market garden laborer, ostler, potman and fly-driver. I would never say I could not do anything that was asked me. I had never driven a pair of horses before in my life, and I was instructed to drive the late Mr. Herbert and Mrs. Ingram to the office of the Illustrated London News, in the Strand, from their villa at Acton. But I found myself again drifting among my old and evil associations, so resolved to emigrate to Canada, and for the 12 years I remained in that highly favored colony I need not have been out of work one day if I had liked; and, in my humble opinion, that is the country for all such as are full of the real grit, moderate intelligence, and will vigorously ply their shoulder to the wheel.

"A few years ago I returned to England, but I find myself, at 63 years of age, out of work, though full of health and as active as a kitten. Better testmonials no man in England has got then mine. I have advertised in various papers and answered advertisements in numerable, and in every instance my age is my drawback. I have not felt old yet, and I would undertake for all I am worth-and I am not hard up-to cook a four-entree dinner for and wait table on six persons, as well as, if not better than, any young man that ever put foot in a useful indoor servant, were to offer lungs and relieves consumption.

BETTERS

On McKinley Carrying Kentucky Will

The betting fraternity seems very much agitated over the political outcome of the McKinley-Bryan fight in Kentucky. The holders of the Bryan end are vainly hoping that if Smith, the highest candidate on the Bryan ticket pulls through by running ahead of the lowest man on the McKinley employment to making snows white ticket, Bryan thus getting one of the thirteen electors, they will get their money back. This is not true. The McKinley men will win every bet. Had Bryan gotton six to McKinley's seven of the electors, even then every Bryan better would lose his money; much more does he loose if McKinley get twelve out of thirteen. There can be no dispute about this. This claim that McKinley has not carried the State because Bryan has one elector is exceedingly transparent and will not hold anywhere. It would be the grossest unfairness to say that bets should be drawn because the first elector on the Bryan ticket runs a few votes ahead of the last man on the McKinley ticket. Either the men at head of each electoral ticket must be compared, or the men at the tail of the ticket, and in either case the McKinley elector is 500 ahead of the Bryan elector.

But while Bryan may get one elector the chances are that he will not. But should he, there is nothing left for the McKinley men to do but collect their bets.

The Curse

The most horrible disease to which The most horrible disease to which the human family is subject is conta-gious blood poison. It has always baffled the doctors, for notwithstanding the progress made in some branches of medicine, they have failed absolutely to discover a cure for it. Whether in the form of powder, pill or liquid, the doctor's prescription is always the same—potash or mercury.

Mr. Otto H. Elbert, who resides at the corner of 22d Street, and Avenue N., Galveston, Texas, had a severe experi-ence with this dreadful disease, and under date of April 5th, 1896, writes:

"Several years ago I was so unfortunate as to contract contagious blood poison, and was under treatment of the best physicians continuously for four years. As soon as I discovered that I had the disease, I hastened to place myself under the care of one of the foremost doctors in my State, and took his treatment faithfully for several mon hs. The Companion Calendar,

It is said that the expense of making the Companion Art Calendar for 1897 was so great that had it been published in the usual quanity it could not be sold for less than one dollar. Four beautiful female figures are reproduced on four folding pages. Each figure is lithographed in twelve colors, being a true reproduction of the original water-color painting, which was selected because of its excellence of design and charm of color and tone. The size of each of the four folding pages is 101/2 by 6 inches.

It is by far she best piece of color work the Companion has ever offered. Both as a calendar and as a gem of the lithographer's art, it is so attractive that it becomes a valuable addition to the mantel or centre table of any room. It is given free to all new subscribers sending $1.75 to the Companion for the year 1997, who receive also the paper free from the time the subscription is received till January I,

Celebrating in 1897 its seventyfirst birthday, the Companion ofiers its readerf many exceptional brilliant features. Fully two hundred of the most famous men and women of both continents have contributed to the next year's volume of the paper. For free Illustrated Prospectus address.

RELICS OF THE PAST.

Some of the Curious Prerogatives of London City Companies.

Among the powers still exercised is the right of members of the Vintners' company to sell foreign wine and spirits without a license. There are still many "free vinters" throughout the country, who do not come under the jurisdiction of the licensing authorities. From time immemorial this company also enjoyed the exclusive right of "loading and landing, pitching and turning" wines and spirits imported to and exported from the city of London. Its franchise is still exercised by its tackle-porters. The gunmakers, too, have kept their right to test and approve guns at their proof-house. They formerly had the right to punish any man who made a gun without having been apprenticed to the trade, and to prevent persons hawking guns for sale. Another company exercising important powers is the Scriveners', which prevents any man practising as a notary in the city unless he is a member of the company and duly qualified. The Fishmongers' company has always had the control of the fish trade, and a reminder to this effect came in the form of a notice recently issued, addressed to "fishermen, fishmongers, dealers in fish and others," warning them against the capture of unseasonable and unclean salmon, and of migratory fish of the genus salmon, and its sale either in London or the provinces. They do not, however, as in olden times, impose fines "of their own right," but initiate prosecutions before the legal tribunals. Their functions in the matter of the seizure of unsound fish are also largely undertaken now by the inspectors and officers of local author-

One of the latest powers exercised was by the Butchers' company, which in the reign of George III. got an act passed which was known as the "Flaying Act," by which, in concert with the cordwainers and curriers, they had power to levy fines on persons "willfully, negligently or carclessly" gashing the skins of animals when flaying them. This act was repealed in 1824. Before the commission of sewers took over the duty, this company used to search for and seize bad meat; but they found a difficulty in recovering their costs. Still more curious powers of this company were those for preventing "forestalling, discommending other men's meat," and "conspiring not to sell meat except at a certain price." They had further the power to tax butchers for the removal of the general offal. The cordwainers regulated the sale of boots and shoes up to the time of George IV. when the power ceased to be exercised, "by the will of parliament."-St. James' Gazette.

NEWSPAPER CLIPPINGS.

A Valuable Collection Made by the Omaha Public Library.

A most interesting and valuable scrap-book collection is that of Miss Dora Burstall, of the Omaha public library. This young lady, who presides over the reading rooms and takes care of the newspaper files, became possessed of the idea that there was a great loss of information when every month these files were destroyed, and she began to clip from them systematically. Enthusiastic and faithful in her work, it steadily grew until now, with the assistance of the head librarian, who recognized its value, it has become a comprehensive bureau of information. In neat rows on long lines of shelves are ranged the big cardboard envelopes, book shaped, that in alphabetical order contain clippings from the best-known newspapers of every large city, comprising a wide and varied range of topics. One department of this unique collection is devoted to biography, and in this the clippings are mounted, and when possible the sketch is headed by a portrait. These are well patronized by the local newspaper people, who want to have cuts made. Each clipping has marked upon it the paper from which it was taken and the date of its appearance.

For the benefit of the public school children there is a department containing descriptions of the Yule tide, the national holidays and every kind of festivity, with appropriate selections in verse and prose.—Troy Times.

BRIDGE BUILDING IN 1800. The Triumph of an Old-Time Architect's "Visionary" Scheme. Rare books and gems of art are occasionally picked up at the stoager sales in this city, says the New York Times, by men who make a business of gambling on the contents of trunks and cases auctioned off to cover storage dues. Several trunks, the property of a son of a one-time prominent municipal official of this city, were bought in a storage sale last week by Robert Fullerton, who Third avenue. The owner of the trunks lost a fortune in Wall street, and is now too poor to pay even a few dollars to save his father's private papers and books and old family relies from being sold for storage charges. Among the contents of one of the trunks was a rare and interesting volume printed in this city in 1800, describing a plan of one Thomas Pope, architect, for a great arch bridge over the Hudson river.

sent the volume to the civil engineers' club of this city. There were only a few hundred copies of the volume printed. cer-

Mr. Fullerton has decided to pre-tain prominent citizens of the city, the governor, Daniel D. Tompkins, and lieutenant governor of the state, and mayor of New York, De Witt Clinton, having subscribed to the volume and guaranteed the expenses publication. Architect Pope lived before his time, and all through the interesting treatise on his plan for a great bridge over the Hudson and a description of ancient bridges there appears the complaining tone of an unappreciated genius. Mr. Pope must have had enemies, for he refers to men who would have him locked up as insane for daring to suggest any such thing as a bridge across a river like the Hudson, with nothing to hold it up in the middle. But men like the governor and mayor and those persons who subscribed to his book listened to the architect's story and believed in him. Mayor Clinton believed the day would come when both the East river and the beautiful Hudson Samuel F. Brown. would be spanned by great bridges similar to the one Mr. Pope had devised. That was very nearly 100 years ago, and the Hudson will at last be spanned by a great structure, as the unappreciated Pope foresaw. In Mr. Pope's volume are descrip-tions of some of the then great bridges of this country and Europe. The bridge over the Schuylkill, at Philadelphia, completed about 1800, was the great wonder in bridges in America at that time, according to Mr. Pope, who believed his scheme a far better one, doing away with all but the end abutments.

A bridge at Wandipoor, India, was also one of the novelties in bridges at the time Mr. Pope described it. It was composed entirely of fir, and had not the smallest piece of iron or any other metal to connect its parts. The beams and planks were both of hewn fir, pinned together by large wooden pegs. without sign of decay.

Still another curious-looking arrangement for a bridge Mr. Pope described as being at Chuka, India. It was operated by an endless chain, which supported the platform, and was securely imbedded in masonry Contrasting these structures in the bridge line with some of the giants recently erected in this country, an idea can be had of the tre dous progress in bridge building. Mr. Pope, if he could now gaze on the Brooklyn bridge or some of the great structures built on his plan without supporters other than the abutments on the shores, would perhaps speak less harshly of the unappreciative people of America who could not eatch his idea at the time he designed the first bridge to connect Manhattan island with the mainland.

FRANK JAMES' NEW JOB.

Will Guard Bullion Cars Against Western Train Robbers.

It would be odd if Frank James, Jesse's brother, were to die at the hands of train robbers who followed in his early footsteps! It may come to pass, too, says the Kansas City

For now that oft quoted bit of advice, "Set a thief to catch a thief," has been beeded by the express companies who carry for tunes through the Southwestern states in their strong boxes, and who lose them sometimes at the hands of desperadoes. Frank James, whose career of crime is, perhaps, second only to that or his notorious brother Jesse, is to accept a position as special express messenger, his duty being no other than that of meeting train robbers at their own game.

Frank James is no longer young, but he can still shoot with both hands and shoot straight. But it is not that account alone that his services are in demand. The men who have made him an offer have decided that the reputation which the man won as a desperado when the band which he and his brother led was the dreaded scourge of several states, will prove a better safeguard for their bullion than even his ready revolver. Indeed it has been said, and with some foundation, that if Jesse James had heeded his brother's warning he would never have been shot down by Ford, whom he trusted so fully that he removed his pistol belt and turned his death would. Frank James had said:

"Trust no one when the price on your head is big enough to make a man rich,"

He is willing to become a watchdog and guard bullion for a living provided the men who wish to employ him will agree to his terms.

"I'll take the job," he told them. "and any one who gets the money from any car I'm riding in will get it over my dead body. But I've been supporting my family and little more. and if I should go under I want to be sure that they will be provided for.

"Now, I'll tell you what I'll do. You sign an agreement by which they are to get $20,000 in case, I'm killed, and I'm your man. I know enough about some of them to be sure that they can still shoot a little, even if the business isn't what it used to be."

So the man whose name was once feared throughout several states is now waiting to see if the expressmen will play $20,000 against his stake, which his life. It will be strange, indeed, if the former desperado, the brains of the most bloodthirsty set of outlaws this country has known, stands on the side of the law against men who regard him and his brother as the patterns to be followed.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear There is only one way to-cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed torever; nine cases out of every ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous sur-
